Resources available to Academic Senates

The ASCCC Guided Pathways Task Force is working with a variety of organizations and is funded by a grant from the Chancellor's office to provide services and resources to local colleges. Before hiring expensive consultants or acquiring a "cookie-cutter" template, let us help you work within your participatory governance structure to design, implement, and sustain your pathways project.

We can provide introductory and general information about guided pathways but are also able to provide specific and targeted information about faculty roles, possible development steps, and communication. We will meet your needs through interactive presentations, small group coaching or mentoring, and development of training and communication materials.

In addition, the Guided Pathways Resource Teams will provide a direct and custom-made response to the needs of local academic senates concerning issues around guided pathways and 10+1, academic and professional matters. These teams will consider an issue statement or inquiry developed by the local senate regarding a current challenge and will create training and potential solutions adapted to the college culture and student populations.

There is NO COST to the college or the local senate for these services.

Heads up!

Early this Fall a survey will be deployed to academic senate presidents regarding the current and ongoing expectations and descriptions of the roles and responsibilities of the local Guided Pathways Liaison. We want to gather information about how colleges are using their guided pathways allocations to support the liaisons through compensation, release time, etc. Please alert your academic senate president to anticipate this survey and encourage them to respond.

Thank you for committing to assuming the Guided Pathway Liaison role at your local college. As a reminder, Guided Pathways Liaisons have the following responsibilities:

- Consult with senate leaders to create a mechanism for the most effective communication with faculty at your local campus about issues of common concern and/or support for guided pathways;
- Monitor local and regional guided pathway discussions and act as a resource for local inquiries;
- Identify local issues of particular concern and convey those to the ASCCC Guided Pathways Task Force;
- Communicate opportunities for faculty to participate through the ASCCC in statewide workgroups, committees, and taskforces in relation to guided pathways;
- Serve as a conduit between the local faculty and the ASCCC Guided Pathways Taskforce representatives;
- As local funding permits, attend statewide events related to guided pathways.
